Dear Paul,

The Supreme Court's order is a temporary injunction against the BoE from conducting the SBP election, specifically student voting. The BoE may proceed with its outstanding complaints, as the order does not explicitly or implicitly prohibits it. The Supreme Court may address the timeline question once we hear the formal complaint and the answer, and issue an opinion or further order.

Members of the Court,

The Board would like some clarification as to the extent of this injunction. The Board clearly understands that the election of the Student Body President is paused. Does this injunction pause all aspects of the Student Body President Election. Until given further guidance the Board will assume that all ancillary actions relating to the Student Body President election are paused to ensure compliance with this order. We would appreciate further guidance as to the nature of how the injunction will be lifted. For instance, will the Board be required to immediately issue ballots for voting? Will the Court set up a timeline or will the Board be allowed to set one for ourselves? If no determination has been made that is understandable, it is also understandable if the Court can not provide further guidance at this time. The Board appreciates your time and energy that you have devoted to this matter.

Respectfully,

The Board of Elections
